

Burnside Street Names and their Origins

U

Undelcarra Road	Burnside
------------------------	-----------------

Origin of present name

Named after the house Undelcarra on this road.

The estate stretched north from Second Creek, between Lockwood Road and Hallett Road up to approximately where Statenborough Street is now located.

Undelcarra belonged to Simpson Newland between 1876 and 1911. He is best known as author of the book Paving the Way but was also a pastoralist from the River Darling area where his Marra Station had an out-station named Undelcarra which is said to be Aboriginal for 'under the hill with running water'.

The estate passed into the hands of Torrens Ward, solicitor until 1919 when it was purchased by Allen Simpson of A. Simpson & Co whitegoods manufacturers. The house is still owned by his descendants.

Final subdivision was in 1969. The gatehouse which is still on Lockwood Road near the bridge over Second Creek was converted into a private residence and the main driveway re-routed to have access from Undelcarra Road. The gates that are now seen there were originally on Glynburn Road at the end of the driveway to the house Erindale.

(For further details of Undelcarra see Debney Drive and Newland Road in Burnside and Torrens Avenue, Erindale.)

Year in which street acquired present name c. 1969

Sources of information

Colman, D. (ed), The First Hundred Years, p, 67.

Warburton, Elizabeth, The Paddocks Beneath, p. 10.

Union Street	Beulah Park
---------------------	--------------------

Earlier name(s) if different from present name

Frederick Street.

Origin of earlier name

Probably named after Frederick Howard a local farmer.

Origin of present name

Probably so-named when Australia became united in 1901 as a single country, rather than being independent States.

Year in which street acquired present name c. 1901

Sources of information

Union Street	Dulwich
---------------------	----------------

Origin of present name

Probably so-named when Australia became united in 1901 as a single country, rather than being independent States.

Year in which street acquired present name c. 1901

Sources of information

Burnside Street Names and their Origins

U

Uxbridge Street

Kensington Park

Origin of present name

Unknown.

Probably named after the town of Uxbridge in Middlesex, England.

Other nearby streets which are also named after British towns are Bedford, Ellesmere, Guildford, Pembroke and Walsall.

Year in which street acquired present name

Sources of information